(Assignment - 2)

Commands in UNIX OS

grep : grep is used to search a pattern from the given file :

1. Create a file called a.txt
2. Add few content
3. Save the file

SYNTAX : grep "pattern" filename

Ex : grep "shell" a.txt

OUTPUT : grep returns the lines which containing the searching pattern.

Syntax : grep -i "search pattern" filename

Ex : grep -i "shell" a.txt

OUTPUT : It returns the lines which containing the searching pattern with ignoring all the cases.

Ex : grep -n "pattern to match" filename

OUTPUT : It shows the line number where is and the matching pattern.

Syntax : grep -v "matching pattern" filename

OUTPUT : It reverse the match show all the lines where shell is not available.

Syntax : grep -w "matching pattern" filename

OUTPUT : It match whole words

chmod : Command used to change the file/directory permissions we can change the file/directory using :-

1. Permission type (r/w/x)
2. Symbol means (user/group/other/all)

1. Permission:
r(read)
w(write)
x(executable)
(4) octal value +/-

2. Symbol means:
u : user/owner
g : group

o : other a : all

Syntax : chmod [options] permission file name

chmod +/- r/w/x o/g/a file name
chmod +x a.txt
chmod u+r a.txt
chmod -u -x -a? (revoke all the permission from everyone)

3. Revoke all the permission from everyone :
chmod -u a+x?
chmod +r a.txt

4. Assigning all the permission to everyone :
chmod +r+x a.txt